Palm Springs Art Museum

Established in 1938, and known for creating transformative experiences as the premier cultural institution in the valley; the Palm Springs Art Museum showcases three disciplines: art, natural science, and performing arts. The tri-level museum features two 20,000 square feet of art galleries, storage vaults, and education center, the famed 430 seat Annenberg Theater, and two outdoor sculpture gardens with desert landscaping and soothing fountains. The museum’s collection rivals urban metropolitan museums and includes art loaned or donated by the area’s affluent residents. A consistently changing program of exhibitions allows visitors to explore the museums’ continual metamorphosis from a desert museum to an art museum and cultural hub.
